- flexibility, self-initiative and the ability to work under pressure
- openness for further tasks in Corporate Communication

What you can expect from us:

- insights to our Corporate Communication
- a friendly working environment close to the University of Bremen
- self-determined work and the freedom to co-create new tasks
- introductory training and work within a young and interdisciplinary team, partially work from home after an introductory phase
- up to 32 working hours per month

Fraunhofer MEVIS is one of the leading global and internationally networked research and development centers for computer assistance in image-based medicine. It follows a patient-centered and workflow-oriented approach to resolve clinically relevant issues in image-based diagnosis and therapy. Fraunhofer MEVIS focuses on epidemiologically significant diseases of the cardiovascular system, the brain, breast, liver and lung, as well as oncological disorders.

The Fraunhofer-Gesellschaft places a high value on the equality of men and women in the workplace. Women are underrepresented in this field, so we especially look forward to applications from women. Family and career are balanced through flexible work hours, part-time opportunities, parent-child spaces and emergency childcare. Employment of persons with disabilities is also a high priority for us and a candidate with disabilities who possesses equal qualifications will be given preference.
